Uniting Agriculture and Medicine to Support Food Sovereignty and Health Justice for All

Agriculture broadly defined for a diversity of food ways to include farmers, foragers, fishers, seed savers, subsistence hunters, ranchers, wild-crafters, pastoralists, forest producers, and more. Medicine broadly defined for a diversity of health ways to include all those engaged in health and healing practices.

Our Vision

A collaborative global community of diverse stakeholders united in a vision of food sovereignty and health justice for all.

Our Mission

To facilitate educational conversations and collaborative engagement for unifying agriculture and medicine to support food sovereignty and health justice for all.

Activities include:

- Hosting an Annual Food as Medicine Global Conference and other events for continued cooperative engagement and information exchange.
- Stewarding the Food as Medicine Global Resource Directory to increase awareness, collaboration, and engagement to benefit individuals, communities, and the planet.
- Facilitating our Online Community Site to promote information exchange and shared learning.

Our Why

The idea of food as medicine makes sense to many working in health care and food production. More and more, nutrition is centered in health professional training, patient care, and conversations around farming, fishing, ranching, and other foodways. However, people across many communities who want to eat well cannot access healthy or even enough food. Many of those producing and providing our food and health care navigate a multitude of inequities.

Join us in creating a more equitable and inclusive food as medicine movement!

Attendee Testimonials

"This was easily the most valuable conference I've ever attended. The amount of information was incredible, and the speakers were diverse and experts in their fields. It provided an unbelievable lineup of speakers. I couldn't stop taking notes the whole time because there was so much information to learn. It was a truly wonderful experience, and the community represented at the conference was welcoming and interactive. This conference was absolutely worth the price, and I fully intend to attend next year."

"I was impressed with the incredible diversity of both speakers and presentations, as well as the depth of knowledge that they brought to the table. I was left full and inspired to weave Food as Medicine into the work that I'm doing."

"This conference is a must as it brings together the many voices and a very diverse community of practitioners, scholars, educators and healers from every corner of the world. I enjoyed learning about the indigenous community food choices and how they use food to heal their wounds and trauma. A very informative conference, very inspiring and healing. Thank you for offering this opportunity."

"The speakers and presenters were all aiming at elaborating the food as medicine from different perspectives for the healthy individuals (women, men, young people and children). The food as medicine conference was an eye opener to me so I can cascade the food as medicine to individuals, households, communities and populations in Burundi, Tanzania and the Great Lakes region; and East Africa Community."

"The conference exceeded my expectations in ways unimaginable. I met people with whom I was at home immediately. I felt we created a home-space for this essential work."

"The Food As Medicine Global conference was very well organized and informative. The global connection with speakers from around the world was heartfelt and inspiring. It contained a message of hope and LOVE!"
